WHAT INAUGURATION COSTS

Amount Expended by the Senate Alone for Its Brief Care of a New President.

Ardgons Work of Rural Congressmen-Luxurious Senators-House Lobbyists to Be Barred from the Floor-Wily Women.

Staff Correspondence of the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.-The annual report of General McCook, the Secretary of the United States Senate, furnishes a lot of interesting information. This year it tells how much it costs to inaugurate a President.

Officially, the incoming President is in the hands of the Senate about two hours. A Senate committee drives up to his hotel, escorts him to the Senate chamber, administers the oath, listens to his inaugural address on a big platform, drives him to his new home at the White House. That's all. But it costs the United States government just $2,520.50 to do even that little. And the sun was not shining that day, either.

The grand stand at the east front of the Capitol cost $467. Five carpenters, at $3 a day, one at $2.50, two at $2, two laborers at $1.75 and four at $1.50 were employed for varying periods from Feb. 18 to March 9 to erect and tear down the structure. It took thirty-two extra policemen to watch this stand for three days at $3 a day. Then it was discovered that these thirty-two were not enough, so two more were added. Total, $300, even money, to watch the stand and the people on it. Mr. George Breitbarth got $426.52 for 2,000 hard-wooden chairs which he furnished the government. Mr. Breitbarth generously threw in the hauling of the chairs. The lumber of the grand stand cost $464.52. Incidentally, it took 27,929 feet of lumber to build that stand, besides 9,782 feet white pine culls, 1,024 feet scantling and culls, 1,544 Virginia pine, and other fragmentary incidentals. The draping of the stand was very beautiful, and the man who did it was an artist.

It required 162 yards of bunting and two gross of draping buts. It cost only $935.

The nails, bolts, tacks, etc., cost $38.10.

Every one remembers the remarkably beautiful cards of admission and programmes of the occasion. They cost enough to be beautiful. The Bureau of Engraving and Printing charged the Senate $206,33 for engraving the plate of the admission cards, $67.85 for preparing the cards, $77 for engraving the cards of the order of procession, and $52.55 for printing; total, $403.73. Then Mr. H. Buamgarten stepped in and got $5 for an autograph stamp, and 50 cents for a bottle of ink.

Besides Mr. Brietbarth's two thousand chairs ($426.52, including the hauling) there were 600 high-toned folding chairs, at 15 cents. Despite the $300 worth of special policemen, somebody seems to have "sniped" five of the chairs, because they were not returned. Six more were broken, and "perfertly useless." Extra charge, $5.50. Total for high-toned chairs, $95.50.

But of all the people who thus incident-ally assisted the Senate in inaugurating the President, none seem to have risen so thoroughly up to the full dignity of the occasion as the able Washington Nailor, who for Washington. For the two four-horse carriases that appeared in the parade, Mr. Washington Nailor charged his native country $150. Then there were two more carriages at $50 each, and one little, "lowdown" carriage at $5; a coupe for $8. Total,

There were some other little incidentals, running up the entire bill to $2,520.55. No wonder we pay our President $50,000 a year to stay in the White House, when it costs $2,500 to get him into it after he comes to

"I would rather take the work of a member from a large Eastern city for four years or that of one from a Western city three years than do that for a member from a Western rural district one year," said a rural Congressman this morning.

"Easy work serving a district in New York city or Boston, for instance," he continued, "for you are seldom called upon to do what we call 'local work'-that is lookdo what we call 'local work'—that is looking after appointments, pensions, promotions in the departments, and so forth. The politicians of the district take charge of the political work here, relieving the Congressmen of the drudgery. But I have it all to do for my district. My constituents expect and have a right to demand it of me. The legislative work is easy. It is the drudgery in the departments that takes nearly all of a Western Congressman's time, and makes him swear. That is what requires study and patience. It takes two requires study and patience. It takes two or three years for a man to know where to go in these scores of government offices, when he wants to do a thing, and it takes two or three more years for him to learn how to do them when he knows where to find the work he must perform.

"There is a great difference between the work of an Ohio, Indiana, or Illinois, Nebraska member and that of a New York or New England member. One is easy and plain; the other onerous, complicated and never-ending."

Senators are growing very luxurious in their official life at the capital. There are eighty-two Senators. The make-up of the special and standing committees give these men about forty chairmanships, and the committees have about thirty-five rooms in which to hold meetings and do the private work of the Senators. Nearly all of the Senators are members of four or five committees. Those who are not chairmen have been in the habit of making their headquarters in the room of the committee which is the most conveniently located. The private business of each Senator has grown so greatly, however, that where more than one member conducts his own affairs in a committee-room there is considerable crowding, and a disposition has en-croached upon the customs of the Senate to provide a private room for every Senator; but it was not till a few days ago that the Senators screwed themselves up to a sufficient point of courage to come out boldly in favor of this proposition.

It has just been discovered that a committee of the Senate has for some days been engaged making an investigation of available buildings near the Capitol for the purpose of leasing them, to be used as private rooms, where Senators may locate their secretaries and conduct their own business. The Maltby Hotel, situated one square north of the Senate end of the Capitol, has been selected for this purpose. It is a new structure, and will afford ample space to give each Senator who is not chairman of a committee, or who, being a chairman, is not provided with a pleasant committee-room in the Capitol building, a splendid new room in a handsome building. The Senate is growing quite luxurious.

Speaker Reed says he will not suffer the floor of the House to become a rendezvous of ex-congressmen who are lobbyists. There is a rule which provides that when a man leaves Congress he may visit the floor of the House of Representatives as frequently as he wishes by securing a card from the Clerk showing that he is an exmember of Congress and is not interested in any pending legislation. Governors of States, ex-Senators, as well as members of the Supreme Court, ex-Presidents of the United States, ex-Vice-presidents and heads of bureaus are admitted on the same ground. It has been customary for members of Congress who have no business at home to locate in Washington and take advantage of their privilege of the floor of the House. There are probably two or three hundred ex-members of Congress in Washington now. They are in all professions of life, but especially "attorneys before Congress." They are hired to represent certain intermembers and the fact that they have the privilege of the floor of the House. Sometimes one can see twenty or thirty of these men on the floor of the House at one time, quietly talking to the members in the interest of the measures they are paid to represent. Speaker Reed has issued instructions to the Clerk and Door-keeper of the showing that a man is an ex-member of Congress and entitled to the privileges of the floor of the House, very searching questions are applied. It is only by perjury that a lobbyist can now get on the floor. There is a much better atmosphere around the Speaker's desk than there was in that locality a few years ago.

Some new members of Congress have had their fingers severely burned by female employes in the departments. An old member of Congress is very chary about interesting himself in behalf of any female clerk because, in the first place, a man very often is suspected of impure motives if he freely exerts his influence to secure the appointment or promotion of a good-looking woman in a department here. Then he no sooner gets the average woman into a place than she wants a promotion; and no sooner has she got a promotion than she demands another. The greed of a woman in an executive department seems to be unlimited. A member from one of the Southern States related his experience to me the other pay, and it is as interesting as me the other nay, and it is as interesting as it is typical of the experience of other

"Very shortly after the organization of the present Congress," said he, "I was called out of the dining-room at the Ebbitt by a woman who presented a letter of introduction from one of my old friends—a politician who had often helped me on the hustings. My friend stated that the woman was a clerk in one of the executive departments and she desired a promotion, and he asked me to do all that I could in and he asked me to do all that I could in her behalf. I did not know the woman, and cared nothing about her, but to satisfy my friend I told her I would give her a strong indersement for promotion, and in my letter to the Secretary would ask as a personal favor that he give her case early attention. Two days elapsed and I received a letter from her, asking me to call at the department the next day and see the Secretary in person. I wrote her a note in reply, saying that I was exceedingly busy with pressing duties at the Capitol and belated correspondence, but that I would call at the department at the very earliest moment and comply with her request. The next day I was amazed to get a very pert and saucy letter from this woman. She proceeded to say that I could not 'stand her off' or trifle with her by giving simple excuses, and that I had not kept my promise. She was very impudent, and I ascertained upon inquiry among some of my fellow members that it was a typical case with many nar

"What did I say? I sat down and wrote a letter to the secretary, stating the whole circumstances under which I met this woman, and recited what I had said to her and enclosed her letter. I said that I hoped something would be done about such action as this woman had taken so that other members might not be imposed upon. In reply the secretary wrote me a note that he was under obligations for my having called his attention to the impudence, and assuring me that he would take notice of the incident. I understand that the woman has been dismissed from the service."

There are hundreds of very poor, artless and deserving woman in the departments.

Aye, there are thousands of them, and they are largely in the majority of the whole list. But there are just enough of them who are wily and who are on the lookout for susceptible members of Congress, and who will take advantage of anything that is said to them to make life miserable for the verdant or uncautious member of Congress. There are over one hundred new men in the House, and some of them, I understand are "losing their back hair" just at this time on account of having been drawn into the meshes of the wily ones. who have more hardihood than gratitude. PARIS, Ky., Jan. 25.—Commodore Bram, formerly of the confederate navy, who was arrested here last week by Mr. Shelby, of Lexington, Ky., to secure $200 obtained by Brain on a draft, was again arrested on a warrant from the sheriff at Henderson, Ky., charging Brain with felony. The charge at Henderson is that he fraudulently presented himself as agent for Bodish & Co., of London, England, for whom he was mittee will meet for organization on Thurs-day night at the office of Geo. An invitation is extended to all, and those who favor the lodge with a visit will be condiable makened. Lexington was not. Commodore Brain commanded the confederate squadron consisting of the Chesapeake, Roanoke and St. Mary in the battle of Bermuda Hundred, a few miles below Richmond, in 1864, and was wounded five times in that en-gagement, one wound being a crushed skull by a spent ball. C. E. Zimmerman, who died Sunday last and was buried by Indianapolis Lodge and Metropolitan Encampment Thursday, was a member of Richmond Lodge. The interment was at Crown Hill and was largely attended. Mr. Zimmerman was long identified with Odd-fellowship and was one of its earnest workers and defenders.

Consolidation of Electric Light Interests. NEW YORK, Jan. 25 .- For some time various corporations interested in electric lighting in this city, together with the cor-poration that controls the subways, have been negotiating for a consolidation of in-terests. These negotiations, according to the evening Sun, are now practically ended. The long-continued struggle between the electric-light companies and the Metropolitan Telephone Company, which controls the subways, is ended. The subway com-pany has transferred for a large consideration, to the consolidated electric-light interests, controlled by the Westinghouse company, all its rights, franchises and contracts, by virtue of which it controlled the subway. It is, adds the Sun, a long story of shrewd financial management, consummate organizing skill and delicate dealings with politicians who have been able to conwith politicians who have been able to control the operations of the Board of Electrical Control.

Two Burglars Given Long Sentences. PITTSBURG, Jan. 25.—The heaviest sentences inflicted by a court in this city in many years were given Wm. Smith alias "Baltimore Harry" and James Burns alias "Baltimore Jim," who pleaded guilty to seven charges of burglary. The first named received twenty-one years and six months, and the latter seventeen years and six months in the penitentiary. These two men are well-known characters all over the country. Their principal crime was the robbery of the store of L. K. St. Clair in Wilkinsburg, a suburb of this city. St. Clair was shot by them and almost died from the effects of his injuries. The extreme penalty of all the charges was seventy five years each enty-five years each. Speculator Hutchinson's Losses. CHICAGO, Jan. 25.-B. P. Hutchinson, the Board of Trade man, in an interview this afternoon states that, after investigation, he is unable to ascertain that the embezzle ment by the clerks Stoner and King have mulcted him beyond $2,000 or $3,000. His investigations, however, have only been extended through the books of the past two or three months. Whatever he may have lost previous to that he thinks is now difficult of ascertainment. Mr. Hutchin-son maintains that both the clerks, Stoner and King, are still in the city, and that he has to-day received proffers of compromise from their friends.

THE effect produced by Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Colds. Coughs, Croup, and Sore Throat are, in most cases, immediately relieved

"I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for thirty years and have always found it the best remedy for croup, to which complaint my children have been subject."—Capt. U. Carley, Brooklyn, N. Y.

"From an experience of over thirty years in the sale of proprietary medi-cines, I feel justified in recommending Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. One of the best recommendations of the Pectoral is the enduring quality of its popularity, it being more salable now than it was twenty-five years ago, when its great success was considered marvelous."— R. S. Drake, M. D., Beliot, Kans. "My little sister, four years of age, was so ill from bronchitis that we had almost given up hope of her recovery. Our family physician, a skilful man and of large experience, pronounced it useless to give her any more medicine; saying that he had done all it was possible to do, and we must prepare for the worst. As a last resort, we determined to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and I can truly say, with the most happy results. After taking a few doses she seemed to breathe easier, and, within a week, was out of danger. We continued giving the Pectoral until satisfied she was entirely well. This has given me unbounded faith in the preparation, and I recommend it confidently to my customers."—C. O. Lepper, Druggist, Fort Wayne, Ind.
